-Minister's Message-

The devastating Earthquake and Tsunami struck the Northeastern part of Japan on March 10. The images shown on TV or Internet were really hard to watch. The strong Tsunami swallowed the people, houses, cars, boats... everything in a matter of seconds. Thousands of people were killed, and the numbers of deaths are still increasing day by day. Many people are still missing, and the people who evacuated are desperately searching for their loving family and friends.

I have been watching this news on TV or on the Internet for a very long time since Thursday night. I felt that our human life is indeed unpredictable. Human beings are so weak and cannot do anything against such a strong force of nature. The disaster happened without warning. Who would have thought that they lose everything by the disaster in an instant? Who would have thought that the "Have a good-day" and "Good-by" they exchanged in the morning become the last "Good-by" in their lives? This disaster really made me think that the life is really unpredictable and unimaginable.

In such a disastrous time, I think we as Buddhists must not forget the teaching of "Interdependence". All people and all things in this world are closely related to each other. I think we should not just observe this disaster from the third party's viewpoint, but we must think about how their feelings are and empathize with those people. Instead of thinking, "Well, I have nothing to do with those people," I think we should think, "What can I do for those people?" Maybe there are not too many things we can do as an individual, but of course it does not mean that we don't have to do anything. Rescue teams from America and many other countries were sent to Japan, and many people, throughout the world, are sending their kind considerations and donations to the victims in Japan. I feel that the true Buddhist is not a person who knows all the doctrines, but a person who can think of others. This self, whose true nature is very selfish and filled with blind passions, will be nurtured by the Compassionate Light of Amida Buddha, and become a person who can empathize with others and take action to "protect all who are weaker than myself".

Mr. Arun Gandhi Grandson of Mahatma Gandhi Visits PBA

On March 4, Pacific Buddhist Academy was honored to have Mr. Arun Gandhi, grandson of the legendary Mahatma Gandhi, as a featured speaker at our weekly temple service. The temple was filled to capacity with PBA students, faculty, and board members, Hongwanji Mission School middle schoolers, members of the public, representatives from a variety of community groups including the YMCA, HANO, and ACLU, and even students and faculty from a Kaneohe charter school.

Mr. Gandhi was born in a racially segregated South Africa during the years of apartheid. He and his late wife Sunanda moved to India where Mr. Gandhi worked for 30 years as a journalist for The Times of India. Inspired by Mahatma Gandhi's philosophy of nonviolence, in a country where nearly half the population falls below the international poverty line, Mr. & Mrs. Gandhi developed social and economic projects to benefit the most disadvantaged people. In 2008, Mr. Gandhi founded the M.K. Gandhi Institute for Nonviolence. Collectively, these programs have improved the lives of more than half a million people in over 300 villages in India.

"When Mahatma Gandhi planted the seed of non-violence and civil disobedience to achieve justice in the soil of India's politics," said PBA Head of School Pieper Toyama, "he may not have known that the branches of the tree it would grow into would touch millions of people across the globe and across generations. Today students at PBA, study Mahatma Gandhi and the profound effects he had on how we in the U.S. are working to achieve justice, equality, and peace in our communities and nation."

In the temple service, Mr. Gandhi spoke about his grandfather's wish to establish peace in the world and shared the elder Gandhi's belief in "the respect and sanctity of all the different religions." He talked about how religion and labels are used to judge and divide people and to create competitive environments. Instead, relationships, he said, "should be built on the four principles of respect, understanding, acceptance and appreciation. We have to remove all those labels and begin to look at each other as human beings," he continued. "And when we do that, we will appreciate our own humanity. Then we will truly be civilized human beings who can get along with each other and create peace and harmony in the world."

PBA social studies instructor Carol Helekunihi was thrilled to have a chance to listen to and meet Mr. Gandhi. "It's important for our students to have historical role models who have risen above the dogma of their time to take a universal approach to peace," said Ms. Helekunihi. "Mahatma Gandhi led a mass movement by finding commonalities among many faiths—Muslim, Hindu, and Christian. In both Mr. Arun Gandhi and in his grandfather's work, the students can see that nonviolence is not just a theoretical concept—it is a method of deconstructing violence and it works!"

Excerpt from Mr. Gandhi's talk:

We have to respect ourselves, respect each other and respect our connection with all of creation. That is very important because today many people say we are independent individuals and we can do whatever we like and it's nobody's business. We are not independent individuals. We are all interrelated and interconnected and we have to respect that. Not just as human beings, but we are connected with nature also. So if we abuse nature we are harming ourselves. Or if we are abusing each other we are bringing ourselves down in the process. So we have to respect that connection that we have. And when we understand that connection and respect that connection then we will understand who we are and what we are and why we are here on earth.

Mr. Gandhi was a guest of the Gandhi International Institute for Peace, whose mission is to foster the non-violent resolu-

BUSY BUSY BWA

Have you ever been to a Tea Party, like Alice in Wonderland. The BWA annual New Years' Party was a Tea Party at nearby Makawao Steakhouse. What is a Tea Party without hats, and some ladies were very creative with their hats. The prize goes to the Umitani ladies who had colorful sun-hats. Does Rev. Umitani ever wear a hat? Thank you to Glynis and her daughter Maya who organized the fun games, and to all the ladies who attended. We welcomed 2010 new members Stephanie Thomas and Kelly Yokouchi, and 2011 Gail Hamai. Welcome also to new members Judy Hisashima and Joan Honda.

BWA has been organizing movie-day after church. The first feature was Departures and the second was Hula Girl. Everyone is welcome to attend the movie-day.

On April 2, the Maui United BWA Spring General Assembly was held at Maui Tropical Plantation. Before going downtown, Makawao and Kahului BWA members visited Kula Hospital and shared some lap blankets and wheelchair bags they had sewn, and donated craft materials to be used in the activities room. Thank you to Diane, Marilyn, Alison and Alma for sewing, and to everyone who attended the luncheon and meeting.

Soon it will be time for the BWA World Convention in Kyoto, Japan. Have you started to pack your bags? May is fast approaching, so keep on exercising so you can keep up with all the walking. Janice Shiraki brought her mother's photo album from the 1970 World Convention. It's at the church office if you'd like to get a preview of the sights of Japan and Honzan in Kyoto.

Busy BWA is celebrating our 100th Anniversary this year. The tentative date for the special service is October 23. Please plan to attend.

Thank you for coming to church and sharing refreshments. Here is our busy schedule for the next 3 months:

“SHARING IS CARING PROJECT”

President's Message:

Did you know that every Buddhist temple has a direct line to Buddha? All you have to do is pick up the phone and dial 1-808-Buddha. The calls cost $20.00 a minute from all the temples EXCEPT here at Makawao Hongwanji Mission. Our calls cost only 50 cents a minute. Why? Because, from MHM, it's only a local call. Alright, you members from the other temples, I heard that. For your information there is no phone line to Buddha. I was just kidding. You have to e-mail Him.

I have decided to form a new organization called the Peach Corps. Our members will all belong to the Royal Order of the Peach. Responsibilities include growing, picking, washing, and pickling our peaches. We are looking for your help because we are short-handed. So if you are long-handed, we could use your help. If you sign up right now, we will waive the $10,000 membership fee. The work is very dangerous but very rewarding. When picking the peaches, we guarantee that you will not be attacked by lions and tigers. This is the result of the great effort put forth by our Peach Secret Service Organization. Your safety always comes first. So, if you can help us, please call Janie at 572-7229. Thank You!

We still have our Makawao Hongwanji Mission Cookbooks for sale for $15.00. If you are interested, please contact Janie at 572-7229. The best recipe in the book has to be the one for chicken lips. It's so good that when you eat this, you're going to get chicken skin. The phrase "Broke the Mouth" came from eating this dish. Even Colonel Sanders couldn't figure out what the 4,000 secret herbs and spices are for this delicacy. Although it may be hard to believe, you can count on me to tell you the truth. $15.00 for our cookbook is a really good price, honest.

Have you ever noticed that when you are on a plane, the flight attendants always have to give you instructions on how to buckle and unbuckle your seatbelt? They always do this, so I thought that since it's so complicated, I have created a CD on how to buckle and unbuckle your seat belt. For only $19.95, plus shipping and handling, you will receive a 90 minute CD. BUT WAIT! If you order right now, you will receive a second CD absolutely free. Just pay separate shipping and handling. BUT WAIT, THERE'S MORE! If you order right now, we will also send you our 5,000 page manual. It's for people that feel more comfortable with a hard copy. If for some reason you are not completely satisfied, return the CD for a full refund but the 5,000 page manual is yours to keep. Order now!

Dharma School Movie Night By Mealani Nako

On Saturday, March 5th, the Makawao Hongwanji Dharma School hosted a movie night. All the Dharma School students were there dressed in their warm clothing and had their cuddly blankets and pillows ready for the fun movie night. It was Maya's birthday the next day so we celebrated with red velvet cupcakes and a yummy dinner. The food was delicious and somehow we still had room for marshmallows. As we sat around the hibachi and made our s'mores, you could see happiness in everyone's faces and you could hear the laughter from one another. Then we all got cozy and watched the movie “Kung Fu Panda” starring Jack Black. It was a memorable night where we all got to have fun with one another while watching a panda learn kung fu skills.
